To help give patients the best care possible, sometimes we will need to share information about you and your health. The detail of this could include your name, address, dates of any visits and/or treatments. This information is shared to make sure we and other colleagues know enough about your needs to support you. We have specific rules, governed by law, which we must stick to, intended to protect any information we may hold or share.

We may share your information with the following types of organisations:

- NHS Trusts, such as Hospitals
- Community/district nurses
- NHS 111, ambulance and/or other emergency services
- General Practice
- Child and adult safeguarding services e.g. MASH
- Social Services, Local Authorities
- HSCIC, Care Quality Commission

The reasons why we may share your information could be for the following reasons:

- Research,
- Audits - including local clinical audit to provide quality assurance of the care received by our service users
- Local and national benchmarking
- Service management
- Commissioning and commissioners reports (e.g. to CCGs)
- Contract monitoring
- Capacity and demand planning
- Reporting, including public health alerts, performance and board reports
- Teaching and training
- Sharing best practice/serious case reviews/incident management of adverse events
- Staff and patient surveys
- Personal development/review (particularly for clinicians)
- Subject access requests
- Risk stratification
- Processing information – changing information so it can be used for secondary purposes
